CellSonic makes a range of medical equipment for urology and surgery with the star product being the CellSonic VIPP medical machine. It heals all types of wounds, bones and nerves, reduces the irritation of psoriasis and cures physiotherapy and sports injuries. It is also the only effective way to remove cellulite.

So far in medicine, only surgery and pharmaceuticals are available to hospitals and doctors. CellSonic cures the diseases that are impossible for a scalpel or drugs. The wide capability of this technology means that it can be the centre of a CellSonic Clinic. This has started in Poland, is now in Germany, Switzerland and Cyprus with a clinic due to open in Morocco next month.

The investment required for a clinic is only a machine, the rent of a room, some advertising and a person to handle sales and reception. Medical staff can be brought in as required.

With the first clinic in a country established, the business can be franchised. There is no need to ask for royalties because the shock heads of the CellSonic machine are consumables; the more treatments done, the more profit.

CellSonic has the lowest cost of cure and the important benefit of no side effects. The warranty on the machine is for ten years. The CellSonic company is privately owned with no debts.
